The ability of children to get along with peers and adults is as important to self-esteem as the ability to meet with academic success in the classroom. Social Skills allow children to initiate and maintain positive relationships with others and as a result contribute to peer acceptance as opposed to rejection.

Participants will gain specific knowledge and skills in:

- Identifying critical social skills for children throughout development.
- Identifying parent and teacher skills important to promote children’s social skill development.
- Understanding and using the 3-D (Discuss, Demonstrate, Do) Approach to social skills training.
- Understanding important factors necessary for developing and maintaining behavioral contracts.
- Identifying procedures to facilitate generalization of skills to various settings.
